

FURIOUS AND LARGE-SCALE BATTLES
BLAZE ON 156-MILE RUSSIAN FRONT;
NEARLY 10,000 NAZIS REPORTED SLAIN

Huge Number of German Tanks Taken—American and Japanese Naval Forces Locked in Battle in a "Death Trap" Solomon Gulf—Allied Airmen Pound Enemy Bases in That Area and New Guinea.

(By International News Service)
Furious, large-scale battles blazed on a 156-mile front in Russia today as Moscow announced that nearly 10,000 Nazis were slain and hundreds of tanks and planes destroyed during the first 24 hours of the long-expected German offensive.
Half a world away, American and Japanese naval forces were locked in battle in a "death trap" gulf in the Solomons while Allied airmen pounded enemy bases in that area and in New Guinea, where ground troops pressed on towards the Japanese stronghold at Salamaua.

Today's noonday communique from Moscow brought to 9,900 the total of German troops killed since the Nazi drive at 4.30 a. m. yesterday on the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front. A total of 738 enemy tanks and 203 Nazi planes were destroyed, while no major breakthroughs were scored by the Germans. Repeated attacks all along the blazing front were repulsed, the Russian high command said.

In one sector, 100 tanks momentarily penetrated the Soviet lines, followed by infantry. But Soviet troops quickly cut off the Nazi troops, slaying 4,000, while Russian artillery sent the tanks reeling back after 50 were knocked out.
Near Belgorod, 50 miles north of Kharkov, 2,000 Germans were slain as Soviet troops beat back numerous attacks. In one sector alone, Moscow said, 85 tanks were shot out of the battle.

In another sector, the Germans occupied two Russian-held localities but were later driven back again, leaving hundreds of dead. The Germans also scored a temporary success at the northern end of the battle-line, when two Nazi regiments captured trenches near an important height southwest of Mtsensk, 35 miles northeast of Orel. But here, too, they were driven back, leaving 600 dead.

The ground fighting was accompanied by fierce sky battles. Russian bombers meantime carried out heavy raids on enemy-held rail junctions at Roslavl, Gomel and Ucheva, where trains and supply dumps were blown up.
The Pacific naval battle flared in Kula Gulf, between New Georgia and Kolombangara islands, apparently after U. S. warships went there to bombard Jap positions at the northwest tip of New Georgia and at Vila, on Kolombangara. The American ships were supported by planes whose bombs, including 1,000-pounders, set off mighty explosions and fires.

To the south, outnumbered Allied warplanes battled 40 Jap Zeros over

Many Enroll for The Summer Session at State

STATE COLLEGE, July 6—Approximately 675 teachers, educators and administrators are enrolled for Summer session at the Pennsylvania State College, marking the first time in the history of the college that three major programs have been conducted on the campus simultaneously.
The other programs now under way at Penn State are the military training program, with an enrollment of 2100 Army, Navy, and Air Corps trainees, and the regular undergraduate program, with an enrollment of more than 2,000 freshmen and upperclassmen. Three aircraft companies also are sponsoring specialized training programs at the college.

Summer session enrollees, the vast majority of whom are taking graduate work, come from Pennsylvania and 24 other States. Puerto Rico is also represented by one enrollee.

Those from Bucks County include: Doylestown: Janet V. Holmes, Priscilla M. Swartley. Fallsington: Ida L. Bissell. Pleasant Valley: Roy H. Giesmann. Richboro: Edward K. Bender.

Doylestown Stages Old-Fashioned 4th

DOYLESTOWN, July 6—An old-fashioned July 4th observance, without fireworks or an accident, was concluded last night with a colorful street parade and life saving and fire drill demonstrations.
An athletic carnival in the afternoon was followed by a community sing and a band concert in the evening. Volunteer firemen from Doylestown, Dublin and Point Pleasant, with equipment from the Philadelphia Fire Department, participated in the drills.

NAVY USES DOZEN FLORIDA AIR FIELDS

Post-Graduate School Teaches Young Pilots Art of Gunnery

HOW TO ACT ON DUTY

(This is the second of five articles describing the remarkable job the United States Navy is doing in training thousands of aviators for combat duty.)
By James L. Kilgallen (U. S. Staff Correspondent)
NAVAL AIR STATION, Jacksonville, Fla., July 6—(INS)—The intensity of the job the Navy is doing in training its aviators for imminent combat duty is an inspiring spectacle, as newspaper men learn today as they visit the Naval air fields at Jacksonville and environs today.

Rear Admiral A. B. Cook who, as chief of Naval Air operational training in this area, put it succinctly:
"This is really a post-graduate school. We teach them (men who have their wings) the art of gunnery and how to fly combat planes. We give them an intensive two-month course so that when they reach the fleet they are ready to go into combat."

A dozen flying fields in Admiral Cook's command are teeming with activity as thousands of eager fliers, in the final stages of their

CONSERVE MOISTURE FOR GARDEN PLOTS

Such is Bigger Problem As Summer Season Approaches

DUPLICATE NATURE

By Jane Cochran (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

As the hot Summer season approaches, the problem of conserving moisture in your garden becomes one of your main concerns.
Vegetables, no matter what their shape, are composed mainly of water—and they need water and plenty of it to reach that proper shape. Since the weather seems to be on the side of the Axis as far as Victory Gardens are concerned, it's up to the gardener to do something about the situation. Rain descends in torrents when we want the soil to dry out for spading or planting, and stays away for weeks in the hot summer months, when water is essential.

You can do something about the drought situation—even if you can't remedy the early spring surplus of rain. In watering your garden, try and duplicate nature as closely as possible. The soil should be moistened to a depth of several inches, rather than just a surface sprinkle daily. Generous waterings at longer intervals are much more satisfactory than frequent sprinklings.
The answer to this is in the roots of the plants—frequent sprinkling may cause the roots to grow near the surface and the hot sun will water them. Don't, however, water too heavy—you'll wash away plant foods.

Just turning the hose on the garden isn't a good idea. The heavy stream of water will damage the

Wheat Loan Rate Set at $1.52 Bushel

The 1943 Wheat Loan Program has been announced, and farmers will be able to obtain a Federal loan of nine cents a bushel more this year than a year ago, $1.52 a bushel in Bucks County, according to Russell K. Edwards, chairman of the Bucks County Agricultural Adjustment Agency Committee of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. For wheat stored on the farm, the farmer will be paid an additional seven cents a bushel as storage allowance, he said, and will be paid in advance.

Although the current market price of wheat is comparable or above the loan rate this year, Mr. Edwards explained that many farmers will prefer to make use of storage facilities and to keep title to the grain, in order to forestall possible feed shortages next winter.

The operation of the 1943 Loan Program will be similar to that of last year. The rates are based upon a return equivalent to 85 percent of parity. Last year, wheat loans in Pennsylvania totalled $1,167,285—3,936 farmers receiving that amount in loans on 883,333 bushels of wheat placed in storage.

Premiums and discounts for grade and quality are similar to those which applied last year. The loans on wheat stored in approved warehouses will be made on the security of the warehouse receipts, while loans on farm-stored wheat will be secured by chattel mortgage as in the past. Wheat loans will be available through December 31, 1943. Warehouse loans will mature on demand, but not later than April 30, 1944. Loans on farm-stored wheat will mature April 30, 1945. If, or when, the producer redeems his wheat, he will be required to repay the full amount borrowed, plus interest and storage charges.

The loan rate on No. 1 wheat is one cent more than the loan rate on No. 2 wheat; on No. 3, the rate is two cents less than No. 2; on No. 4, five cents less than No. 2; and on No. 5, the loan rate is eight cents less than the loan rate on No. 2.

Holiday Week-End is Free From Accident Cases

One of the most uneventful holiday week-ends in many years was chalked up for July 3rd, 4th and 5th, in this area.

The Pennsylvania Motor Police at South Langhorne barracks state that no accidents were reported to their barracks in that period of time; Bucks County Rescue Squad at Croydon had no calls for accident cases; and the same report is made by Harriman Hospital.

Traffic was "very slim" on all thoroughfares in lower Bucks county, according to the motor police, the pleasure driving had keeping cars in garages. On the other hand public conveyances were packed to capacity during most of the long holiday period.

FLEETWINGS WILL SPONSOR 'MOVIE' SHOW

"In Which We Serve" Will Be Film Showing at Grand Theatre on Thursday

SEAMAN WILL SPEAK

The Fleetwings company, sponsored showings of the magnificent naval film, "In Which We Serve," will take place Thursday at the Grand Theatre. A free-viewing of the picture is assured to every Fleetwings employee by means of the staggering the showings in the same manner as were the "Desert Victory" shows on July 1st, except that there will be no show at 11 a. m.

The first show will be at one p. m., followed by shows at five p. m., seven p. m. and nine p. m. All Fleetwingers will be required to show identification badges to gain admittance. One family member of each employee will also be admitted free as a guest of Fleetwings.

As a fitting prelude to each showing of the picture Fleetwings has arranged for Seaman Basil D. Izzi to recount the experiences of his 85 soul-searing days on a tiny life raft, sea-sawing helplessly on the broad but unmotherly bosom of the Atlantic ocean. Seaman Izzi was a member of a navy gun crew serving on a merchant vessel. When his ship was torpedoed Izzi and four others managed to scramble into a raft.

Then began a battle for survival with the blistering sun, strong winds, and bone-chilling nights that followed. Two of the hapless five died from exposure. Seaman Izzi lost 60 pounds during the 85 days of mortal misery he endured. And how he endured those days will be the subject of his talks.

Zone 3 Dedicates Fully-Equipped Casualty Station and Raises Flags

CROYDON, July 6—This community, Sunday afternoon, joined in two celebrations. One was the dedication of a service plaque honoring the men and women of Croydon who are now in the armed service of their country. The other affair was the dedication of a casualty station, honor roll, and raising of a service flag to those who are in the service from Zone 3.

Assembling at State Road and Patterson avenue, a large group witnessed the first celebration. A parade was held in which Croydon Fire Company, Bristol Cadets, State Police, Ladies Auxiliary of Croydon Fire Co., Boy Scouts, Bucks County Marine Association, Emergency Police and air raid wardens participated. The plaque is neat in appearance and is surrounded by shrubbery. It contains the names of 171 men and women and more are to be added. It was erected through the efforts of the Croydon Fire Company.

The invocation was by the Rev. Fr. Caffrey, St. Thomas Church, James E. Harris, executive director of Bristol Township Council of Defense, presided.

Mr. Harris in his opening remarks, said: "We have here today a sacred duty to perform in honoring those of our boys and girls who are in the service of their country."

Mr. Harris told the group that it had not been intended that he should be the main speaker as Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo was to have been the speaker. Mr. Russo was unable to be present.

Mr. Harris paraphrased the Gettysburg Address of Abraham Lincoln as his talk.

The Rev. Arthur Gibson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Edgington, and chaplain of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, dedicated the plaque. He called attention to the fact that about one year ago a service flag was dedicated at the same spot but that the elements had destroyed it.

Hayden Thompson and Maurice Bradford, two firemen, then removed the covering from the plaque.

The benediction was by the Rev. Caffrey.

The group then proceeded to Main street and Wynnwood avenue, where the casualty station, Continued On Page Four

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

STATE COLLEGE, July 6—Frank E. Mignoni, 4401 St. Bristol, former Pennsylvania State College student, has started classes at the Pennsylvania State College as an advanced engineer under the Army specialized Training Program.

He is among the 775 trainees selected by the Army as having qualifications for engineering study and assigned recently to Penn State. He is in the advanced group of 250 and will pursue mechanical engineering subjects. Even in the face of manpower shortages in certain areas, officials explained, the need for specially trained men in the Army is so great that trainees have been assigned to colleges to acquire background that may better fit them for special military tasks.

In addition to military training and physical fitness, his 61-hour weekly schedule will include mathematics, mechanics, thermodynamics, engineering drawing, shop practices, internal combustion engines, kinematics, metallurgy and heat treatment, machine design, elements of electrical engineering, and other subjects.

FREE ENTERPRISE

The gangs of back lawyers and long-haired economists who infest the Federal pay rolls in Washington have launched a propaganda campaign of scorn and contempt for free enterprise. They are trying to invest the term with a suggestion that it is merely the label under which business men exploit the consumer.

Regardless of their claims, their opposition to free enterprise is opposition to the economic system under which this government brought a higher living standard to the average citizen than any other government at any time in history.

Free enterprise is, in terms of an example which everyone knows, the system under which a Henry Ford, with nothing but a good idea and plenty of courage, created one of the greatest industries in the world. In doing that job, he did more for labor than any other American has done. He transformed the social and economic tempo from the horse-and-buggy speed to the automobile speed.

Today the government has taxed that power away from its Henry Fords. Their earnings are being diverted from plant expansion and search for markets. Their strength is being sapped away to support hundreds of thousands of fuzzle-wits on the Federal pay roll.

Democracy and free enterprise are inseparable. If one is destroyed, the other will expire.

NEEDLESS FEDERAL AGENCIES

Support inside and outside Congress is being given the movement for closing out the National Youth Administration, a depression-born relief organization, which has sought to justify its continuance by inaugurating a war production training program.

Typical is a report on a survey by its research bureau by the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, in which it charges that the program as carried on in that state is "a weak, ineffective and costly duplication" of similar services performed by other agencies. The training centers are declared to be manned "largely by poorly trained, incompetent supervisory and teaching personnel."

Criticism from all parts of the country has been laid before the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Expenditures. The New Jersey Chamber also alleges that in order to build up enrollments in some training centers the NYA has engaged in widespread proselyting among high and vocational school students. From this it would appear the NYA was adapting old tactics to a new situation — tactics that brought from Federal Security Administrator McNutt in 1941 peremptory orders to both the NYA and the now defunct CCC to stop raiding each other's rolls.

While Congress is engaged in the task of injecting sanity into activities on the domestic front, it should sever the jugular vein of the NYA.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, October 13, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

E. Oscar Thomas has tendered his resignation to the Farmers National Bank. He intends to go into the paper business with his brother on Commerce street, Philadelphia.

The new bell at St. Mark's Church has been hung, and is heard ringing every morning and evening.

The proposed trip of the steamer "Republic" to the Yorktown centennial has been abandoned.

With no institute and no lyceum what is Bristol going to do this winter?

The Mount Holly fair this week has been largely attended. Today hundreds of farmers, whose carriages fill up all the available space of the hotel yards and occupy a large part of the streets in the vicinity of the hotels, came into town and passed over the river on the ferry boat. Many people came in cars and it has taxed the efforts of the ferry company to convey the people to Burlington.

The dairymen met in the Bingham House, Philadelphia, on Monday, and perfected their board of trade by the election of the following officers: President, A. S. Cadwalader, Yardleyville, Bucks County; vice-president, Henry J. Ridd, Mount Holly, N. J.; secretary, E. G. Harrison, Humeville, Bucks County.

The fire committee was authorized to sell the building now occupied by the hose company at public sale.

We have received a copy of the Express and Standard, published at Newport, Vt., containing an interesting description of a tour, taking in Watkins Glen, Seneca Lake, Thousand Isles, Montreal, White Mountains, etc., which was made a few weeks ago by a large excursion party made up of persons from New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, Bristol, and other places further south, including a number of persons from the Southern states. Among those from Bristol were J. Wesley Wright and wife. The party were at Newport when the news of the president's death reached them, and the dance which was arranged to come off that evening was postponed, and instead a meeting was called to take appropriate action concerning the president's death. Mr. Walsh of the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, was called to the chair, and J. Wesley Wright, of Bristol, chosen secretary.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Why so little was done when so much needed to be done. One outstanding fact is that the House has done a better economy job than the Senate. The record shows the House did the cutting, the Senate the restoring.

FOR THIS there are three reasons. The first is that all members of the House were elected less than a year ago and all will come up for re-election next year. But only one third of the Senate was chosen in 1942 and only one third will be re-elected in 1944. Thus the House, fresher from the people and closer to an election, reacted, as always, more quickly to public sentiment than the Senate. The second reason is that it is always easier for the House to bring pressure on the Senate than on the House. For one thing, it is easier to get at the Senators. For another, it is easier for the Administration to do them individual favors. For another, every Senator has more jobholding friends than any House member, and his disposition to protect them is stronger. Most Senators feel a certain obligation to Administration officials for favors asked and received. Many House members are resentful over what they asked and did not get.

THE THIRD reason for the House record is more potent than the other two. It is concerned with the Republican leadership. In the House, under Representative Joseph Martin, the minority leader, an effective coalition between the Republicans and the conservative, economy-minded Democrats has been formed. It functions well and usually controls the House. The record this year has been made by that coalition.

THERE is no such coalition in the Senate. It has not been formed because the Republican leader, Senator McNary, is not following a coalition policy. In consequence, it has not been possible to effect a controlling anti-Administration combination along the House lines and a good deal that the House has done in the way of economy has been partially undone in the Senate, where Republicans voted more as individuals than as a party. Senator McNary is popular among his colleagues and an astute politician. He has many agreeable qualities, but he is inclined to take a local rather than a national point of view. Oregon is usually his first consideration and his ability to adapt himself to conditions is attested by the fact that he has been twice re-elected since the New Deal began. Not many Republican Senators have gotten more from a Democratic Administration than he. This session Senator McNary has cast few economy votes. Continued he has not been a leader in the economy fight. In this connection it is interesting that the Senators who most solidly and consistently voted economy at this session are the nine new Republicans elected last fall. The other Republicans voted some one way, some the other, but not according to pattern or following a leader.

REVEALING, also are the anti-economy votes of some of the conservative, anti-New Deal Democrats. For example, Senator George, of Georgia. Considering these things, it is easy to understand why the House has been the effective body on matters of economy. Most observers believe the real economy Congress will be the one that assembles after the 1944 election. They also believe two things about that Congress: first, that no matter whether Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected or not, the Congress will be Republican; second, that with a new mandate from the people, it will slash appropriations as they have never been slashed before.

BEAUTY PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.

(Famous Make-up Advisor to the Screen Stars, Writing for I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Are you contributing to someone's morale? The perfection and glamour of your appearance always must be regarded as one of the many mediums of morale contribution. Your appearance inevitably reacts upon you and everyone with whom you come in contact. If the reaction resulting from your appearance impression is a favorable one, either to you or someone else, morale has been contributed to. If the reaction is unfavorable, morale has been subtracted from.

Your appearance plays a large part in determining whether people wish to know you or not. If your appearance provides perfection, glamour, and appeal, they will definitely wish to know you; if it doesn't, they won't care whether they do or not.

My findings have always been that there are some minor grooming flaws which most frequently bring about unfavorable reactions to a woman's appearance.

Prominent among these are: Eyebrows which have stubbornly wayward tufts of hair marring their symmetry. Don't pluck your brows to a pencil line thinness, but nevertheless see to it that they aren't bushy, particularly in scattered spots.

Sneared lipstick border lines, and lipstick applications which haven't adhered properly. See to it that lipstick borders are sharp. Make sure that your lips are dry when you apply lipstick. Moist lips prevent the lipstick from adhering.

Check rouge applications which are too bright and which cover too much of the cheek. Your rouge pattern should cover no more than the natural "blush" area of your cheeks, and all such applications should have the rouge brightness blended away with the fingertips and finally dulled with face powder.

Too much powder or not enough powder in the crevices at the side of the nose are another source of unfavorable reaction. If the skin of this crevice area is over-abundant in oil, take steps to dry this oiliness down to a more normal degree. Surplus oil in this nose area causes a liberal application of face powder to unattractively cake and crust. A less liberal application will fall to dull the shine of the oily skin.

Loose ends of hair always cause a bad impression of your appearance. So does a hair-do which is so carelessly and loosely constructed that it makes onlookers nervously afraid it is about to fall apart, even if it never quite does.

These are but a few of the most often seen appearance detractors from "morale." There are many more. The best bet is to play safe and see to it that you are at your appearance best, in every detail, at all times. Carelessness in detail is the greatest peril to feminine glamour and allure.

Mrs. Frank Capella, Logan street, is a patient in Abington Hospital under observation and receiving treatment.

SYNOPSIS

The South American jungle was awakening when the injured red-haired man regained consciousness. With great effort, he followed the tracks leading back into the jungle until he sighted the clearing where his enemies were encamped—with Spud, his wounded pal, their prisoner. Cautiously he waited until three of the men rode off—then quickly attacked and subdued the remaining two. Assuring the semi-conscious Spud that their map was safe, they started up the jungle trail and for hours plodded through its tangled foliage, momentarily expecting to be overtaken by their enemies. Drew, carrying his unconscious friend, was near exhaustion when he sighted the Planet Export Corporation Hospital. A beautiful dark-haired girl, garbed in nurse's uniform, came to their aid. Drew, aware that the men who attacked them were Planet employees, realizes they have blundered into the one place they should have avoided. He collapses and later in his hospital room, he and Gloria Diaz, the attractive nurse, recall meeting each other at a recent party. He overhears two men outside his room angrily discussing him and Spud—then Gloria closes the door. Drew is relieved when Gloria's father, the famed Dr. Hernandez Diaz, assures him Spud will be well in a few days. Recalling that the Planet Corporation, financed by European capital and openly anti-American, had recently contracted with Dr. Diaz to use his hospital for their men in the oil fields, Drew is not too surprised when Franz Alter, head of that company, stops in to see him.

CHAPTER FIVE

Franz Alter might not have been as well known along the north coast of South America as Dr. Diaz, but in the republics where his company operated he wielded power far more potent. For ten years, as manager-general of the Planet Export Corporation, he had seen fit to remain always in the background; but in those ten years a host of legends had grown up about him.

Often the tales conflicted. Some — not many, but a few — pictured him as friendly, even sympathetic; others told of his fits of ungovernable anger when his tremendous strength was unleashed; and they recalled that when, with his bare hands, he subdued the leaders of a stevedore strike on his docks, his love for little children was proverbial; his enmity when thwarted was implacable. A strange, unpredictable complex of impulses, and he trusted no man.

Some said it was his genius alone that had built the vast invisible empire controlled by Planet Export. By that they did not mean merely the millions of hectares of land, the extensive docks, or the fleet of oil tankers that bore the Planet insignia. They meant the newspapers that daily blared his propaganda in three languages, and the still more subtle infiltration of the Latin republics by his countrymen.

From Santos to the Rio Grande the influence of Planet Export was making itself felt, and the driving force behind that influence was Franz Alter. Concessions, trade pacts, treaties, had so skillfully established him with the economic life that for the past few years had become a force to reckon with in South America.

His dislike of Americans was notorious. Some said he hated all gringos because his wife was American and they had not got on together. Others said it was for a much more simple reason—that it was Franz Alter's business to check the growing influence of the United States and bring the rich resources of South America under the domination of his own country. That was his job, and even his enemies admitted he was making a success of it.

Yet, strangely, Alter himself was not a wealthy man. Money to him meant only a means to power; and so far as anyone knew, he was scrupulously honest, content with his modest salary as manager-general, and with the knowledge that he was serving his homeland. Two European dictators had decorated him, and now, as he came in the door, he was wearing the ribbons of his various orders, pinned above the pocket of his shirt.

In that brief moment of recognition, Thorpe was conscious of some magnetic quality about the man — not so much the easily assumed friendliness, as a sense that here was one without internal conflict, who knew his goal and was going straight to it, no matter what lay in "Bandits jumped our camp," Drew began, but Gloria interrupted.

"Ah, I hope you do," Alter was smiling again. "I want to talk with Mr. Thorpe later. But he will need clothes. Let me send some of mine, for we are almost the same size."

his path. Beneath the sheet Thorpe felt his heart beat faster—now it ever was the need for supreme action.

But Franz Alter was smiling his most engaging smile. "I came in," he said, "to see if I might be of service. I saw your name on the advertisement list and I wondered if you were not the geologist for the States Oil Company. His eyes were bright with interest.

Thorpe nodded. "That's right. I'm a mud smeller."

"And a very successful one. I know about your work—especially in Colombia."

"You have a good memory." "Absolutely photographic," Alter's deep voice boomed in a laugh; he had a way of clipping each phrase, as if he impaled it to get on to the next. "I wish I could forget a million useless things. And your friend? Is he with States Oil?"

"Spud's a driller with the company." Then very casually Thorpe added, "We were hunting tigre back in the jungle."

Alter's heavy eyebrows raised, but he only echoed, "Ah, yes. Hunting tigre. And what happened?"

Drew hesitated. There was small doubt in his mind that Alter knew as well as he what had happened. It was ten to one that the men who rifled his camp were Alter's own. Well, if Alter wanted to play the waiting game—

OUR VICTORY GARDEN

"Man With Hoe" is "Man Behind The Gun"

By Jane Cochran

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS)—New gardeners, ardent celery fans when it's served to them crisp at the table, regard the plant with a suspicious eye when it comes to raising it.

They feel that it's perhaps the most difficult of all garden crops to grow, and the problem of blanching it scares them off completely. However, one of the main troubles in raising celery in the home garden is that it's never really given a chance. It's planted too close to other crops and they rob the celery of the plant food and good sub-soil it needs to develop properly.

Celery needn't be blanched to be used—blanching makes it more tender and lessens a bitter taste, but it robs the plant of vitamins. There are several varieties now being developed that don't require blanching for home use.

Celery has a long germination period—about four weeks—so starting it from seed is out. The average gardener will buy his plants from the nursery, although they can be raised in flats at home if you started early enough. Celery seed should be planted about 10 weeks before the plants are to be set out.

The fragile seedlings raised in a flat at home should be transplanted carefully when they're about an inch high. They're set out in the garden when they're about five inches high.

The small gardener will find it best to buy his plants already to set out. Follow this method in planting them in the garden—Dig a trench five or six inches deep and put in three or four inches of well-rotted manure. Fill the rest of the trench with good soil.

Smooth the ground and set the celery plants six to eight inches apart. The roots should be well spread out and the soil carefully firmed around them. They should be watered daily until they are well established.

Some Victory Garden fertilizer should be used in addition to the manure in preparing the ground. Be careful, however, to keep it some distance from the plants. Otherwise it will burn the roots.

Celery should be cultivated frequently, but cultivation should be shallow. Celery needs lots of water as water makes up most of the plant. Never allow the soil to become dry.

No matter how carefully you planted celery, you're bound to encounter a few more difficulties while it's growing. You can expect a visit from the tarnished plant bug.

This insect causes heart rot, but it can be controlled. Dust the celery with a mixture of equal parts of hydrated lime and dusting sulphur every 10 days.

Celery blight can also cause you trouble. If it appears in your garden, use a 20-80 monohydrated copper sulphate lime dust.

If you decide that your celery must be blighted, this is a good method:

Put boards up against the celery after it is a foot or so high.

Use boards about 12 inches wide, and the plants should be tall enough to show a few inches of leaves above the boards.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave 1/2 inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about 1/4 turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

FRANKLIN A. C. WINS FIRST-HALF HONORS OF LEAGUE

Croydon Boys Lose By The Decisive Victory of 7 to 1

SAGOLLA ON MOUND

Game Was A Close Affair Until 6th Inning, When Rally Started

By virtue of a 7-1 triumph, the Franklin A. C. nine captured the first half championship of the Bristol Youth League. The game was played Sunday afternoon on the Rohm and Haas field.

With 11 strikeouts to his credit, Joe Sagolla had little difficulty in setting down the Croydon boys. He limited them to six hits, three of which went to Al Bradley.

The game was a close affair until the sixth when the Bristol boys put on a five-run rally which practically gave them the contest. Featuring the rally was a three-bagger from the bat of Centonzi. Scancelli and Johnson led the winners with the stick with a pair of hits each.

In the other Youth League contest, Stanton's trounced the Fourth Ward 12-4, on the high school field.

BRISTOL A. A. NINE LOSES TO PHILA. TEAM

The Bristol A. A. baseball club traveled to Darby, Pa., on Sunday and were defeated by the Philadelphia Daisies colored club by the score of 5 to 1.

Lennie Heister was on the hill for the A. A. club and pitched good ball until the 7th inning when the colored boys teed off against his fast ball, scoring four runs on clean hitting. The A. A. club came to bat in the beginning of the 8th and loaded the bases, but the game was called at 6 p. m., putting the game back to the even innings. Manager Mulholland protested the ruling, saying his club was to start their game at 3 p. m., but the preliminary game with Camp Dix did not get over until 4:50 p. m. Webster McDonald, former Hilldale ace, was on the hill for the Daisies, letting down the A. A. club with only four hits. The features of the game were the fielding of the Daisies' outfielders who shagged 12 hard hit drives.

Dedicate Plaques and Raise Flags in Croydon Areas

honor roll were dedicated, and a flag raised.

Edward Kroonze was chairman and presided.

The invocation was by the Rev. Fr. Caffrey and then Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Chief Air Raid Warden of Bristol Township, spoke. Mr. Schmidt paid high compliment to the residents of Bristol Township for their civilian defense activities.

WELL ESTABLISHED - - By Jack Sords

He also complimented Kroonze for his work. He said that during a recent fire at the Rohm & Haas plant all branches of civilian defense in the Township had been mobilized within 12 minutes.

The service flag and an American flag were pulled to the top of the staff by Mrs. Francis Kucchanko, the mother of three sons in the service. The salute to the flag was given.

Earl Blair, Chief Air Raid Warden of Bucks County, told the group that the people of Bristol Township are very conscious of the fact "we are at war. You have handled the job down here in fine style. We in Bucks County are proud of you. At the beginning you got the impetus which has never let down. Some of the other districts in Bucks County have lost interest. No other district in Bucks County has been as good and as consistent as Bristol Township. You have a higher ratio of trained men and you have uniformed your men."

The plaque was unveiled by Mrs. Jacob Tryon. Mrs. Tryon has granted the use of the ground and building for a casualty station. The plaque contains 40 names. James E. Harris told of the eight casualty stations in Croydon, one being in each zone. He thanked the wardens and police for their fine work and co-operation. He stated that all casualty stations are in charge of the Bucks County Rescue Squad.

The benediction was by the Rev. Lurick, pastor of the Methodist George Lurwick, pastor of the Methodist Church.

The casualty station contains eight cots and full first-aid equipment.

Navy Uses Dozen Florida Air Fields

training, go through their paces on the ground and in the air.

"We do everything they do out with the fleet except shoot bullets," said Rear Admiral Cook. (They do, however, shoot bullets—and plenty of them—on the gunnery ranges.)

Rear Admiral Cook's command

embraces the three air stations at Jacksonville, including Lee and Cecil fields; the station at St. Simons, Ga., and a group of Florida fields located at Fort Lauderdale, Vero Beach, Melbourne, Daytona Beach, Sanford, Deland, Lake City and Miami.

It's a thrilling sight to watch squadrons of planes taking off from these fields, executing all kinds of maneuvers in the air, zooming along in precise formations and finally dropping down on other fields in all kinds of difficult landings.

Dive bombing is specialized in at some fields, fighter plane technique at others, and so on in the following manner: Jacksonville—Torpedo planes, battleship and cruiser planes and patrol planes. Lee Field (Jacksonville)—Fighter planes. Cecil Field (Jacksonville)—Dive bombers.

Miami—Fighters, dive bombers and torpedo planes. Fort Lauderdale—Torpedo planes. Vero Beach—Dive bombers. Sanford—Twin engine bombers, Melbourne—Fighters. Deland—Twin engine bombers. Daytona Beach—Dive bombers. Lake City—Twin engine bombers. St. Simons, Ga.—Fighters.

Operational training is being conducted for six types of aviators: fighters, dive bombers, torpedo, patrol, twin-engine land plane bombers and ship-based scout bomber pilots, and the facilities of all 12 stations are being utilized to the utmost. Some of the smaller fields, which haven't nice big runways, afford excellent practice in difficult take-offs and landings.

The men love it, and hop from one field to another with characteristic young American verve and nonchalance. The number of casualties is unbelievably small considering the intensiveness of the training.

Many hundreds of students are undergoing training in this area. To train them instructors are utilizing 700 modern service planes, 200 obsolete planes and about 400 advanced training planes.

Rear Admiral Cook said the schools under his command plan to qualify 1,200 men a week as combat pilots. A rate of 600 a week has already been reached, utilizing the Wolverine and Sabre, practice aircraft carriers quartered on the Great Lakes.

The purpose of the schools is to take newly designated Naval aviators and give them such operational training that they can assume their proper place in a combat unit (in actual combat operations, if necessary) immediately upon graduation from this command.

Fleet and combat-experienced instructors impart first hand knowledge of battle conditions and technique to the young fliers, and they are doing a grand teaching job. Some of them would prefer to be back with a task force but they make no complaint, realizing that the good of the service must come first.

These training fields in Florida provide a perfect place of duty for many war-weary pilots who have had long and arduous workouts in the Pacific. It enables many of them to recover from nerve strain, so they can be ready for another whack at the Japs at any time they are sent back to the combat zone.

The big naval air stations at Jacksonville and Miami will, in all probability, be permanent, although some of the smaller fields in Florida may be relinquished by the Navy after the war.

Conserve Moisture For Garden Plots

foliage and the soil. Use some sort of a sprinkler or a breaker nozzle to break up the force of the stream.

Not only the amount of rain, but the other conditions of weather will determine the frequency of watering in your garden. In a hot windy period, you'll need to water more often. Your garden will benefit most if you do your watering on cloudy days or in the evening—this minimizes the evaporation from the soil.

Cultivation will help the moisture situation in your garden, as well as keep down the weeds. It will help prevent the evaporation of water, and also prevent crusting of the surface.

However, cultivation just after a rain will do more harm than good. It hastens the drying of the surface soil, which then contains the most moisture. Don't cultivate until the soil is dry enough to crumble in your hand.

If you have your weeds under control and a soil mulch already formed, cultivation is a waste of time. A good rule to follow is to cultivate enough to keep down the weeds—other factors will automatically be taken care of.

Mulches are another method of keeping soil moisture uniform and of keeping down weeds.

A mulch can be applied just as soon as the plants have been thinned to their proper places in the row. If it's applied too early, it will reduce the air in the soil and prevent proper rooting of the plants, as well as cause too great a moisture content.

A good mulch is any material that is clean and doesn't pack. Peat, well-rotted manure, straw, alfalfa, soybean hay, leaves, weathered sawdust, ground corn cobs—all of these may be used. A two-inch layer is sufficient.

Paper mulches are used in some gardens—but they're generally impractical. They'll blow off unless fastened securely and will tear.

Rendova Island, shooting down two of the Zeros against a loss of one Allied plane whose pilot was rescued. North of the Solomons, Allied torpedo planes assaulted a Jap sea-plane base at Santa Isabel Island.

In New Guinea, 700 miles west of the Solomons, tough American and Australian jungle troops continued to press toward the enemy base at Salamaua while Allied warplanes bombed the Jap base and an enemy-held village and jungle tracks on Kela Point and set afire an 80-ton barge in the Arafura Sea between New Guinea and Australia. Two Japanese float planes attacked an Allied vessel in the Arafura Sea without result.

The Japanese high command today made an unconfirmed claim that Nipponese army, navy and air forces in an attack Sunday on Allied shipping in Rendova Harbor sank five transports and 19 barges, shot down 23 planes, and set supply dumps afire.

Strong formations of Allied fighter planes swept over Northern France this morning under excellent weather conditions to resume assaults against the Axis-dominated continent.

FASHION PARADE

By Milo Anderson

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—As recurrent as the summer weather are stripes for sportswear. It is no wonder that they are ever favorites with Hollywood stars, for they permit such diversified styling. This summer, particularly when one's own backyard is the most popular spa, they will entrench themselves more deeply in the hearts of the fashion-minded.

Entertaining service men at a late Sunday morning breakfast, Ida Lupino freshened her K. P. wardrobe with a peppermint-stripe pinaflore of shining chintz. The deep square necklined top was horizon-ally striped, buttoned down the back with flower buttons of carved white ivory, and revealed a peasant blouse of white sheer. The slightly gathered skirt was divided mid-way between vertical and horizontal striping.

Julie Bishop wore a "dandy" of a spectator sports frock at tennis matches the other day. Of rayon seersucker in white striped with brown, its clever detail met with instant approval. The bow-tied neck, vestee front and narrow belt were oppositely striped to the rest of the dress, while dandy ruffles at the wrist and front fullness in the slim skirt added a note of softness to the otherwise tailored aspect. White accessories and white straw beret trimmed with brown grosgrain ribbon completed the sea-cool ensemble.

Purchase of what will be known as the community ambulance of the Dublin Fire Company was announced at the monthly meeting of the firemen last week, by Herbert S. Stauffer, chairman of the ambulance committee.

The proposition to purchase an ambulance had its beginning several months ago, and since that time, it was announced by Mr. Stauffer, nine persons have contributed $1650.

It is expected the ambulance, which will be housed at the headquarters of the fire company, will be delivered in about six weeks. Immediately after it is put into service a drive for the purpose of raising $2500 to pay for it and for its maintenance will be conducted by the committee which has 20 representatives in Dublin and nearby districts.

Believe Bulk of "Jap" Plane Strength in Western Pacific Destroyed

United Nations Headquarters in Australia—Firm conviction that the bulk of Japan's war plane strength in the western Pacific has been destroyed by brilliant American aerial interception in the Solomons and devastating raids on Rabaul was expressed today by Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of United Nations air forces in this area.

"I can only describe the enemy's air reaction to the present campaign as extremely feeble," he said. "And the only inference I can draw is that extensive hammering by the Fifth United States Air Force against Japanese airdromes at Rabaul has resulted in destruction of or damage to the bulk of his tactical strength in this theatre."

Must Endorse Face of Gasoline Coupons

Washington—The OPA today issued new regulations in the gasoline rationing program requiring endorsement of coupons on the face instead of on the reverse side, as in the past.

Further, the regulations stated, all "A," "B" and "C" coupons must be endorsed as soon as they are received by the applicant, instead of when the gasoline is purchased from the filling station.
